Ashland, Ky.

I do not know that you have a brochure department or not and you may not have any use for this one, but since my brother was active in your City both as Medical Doctor and Mayor I thot that you may desire same.

Now in case you keep same in your files I wish that you would get some one to write up a page or so and add to this such as was published in your paper several years ago.

R. D. Davis thot that this Brochure was worth while filing there.

Thank you

—was in the West during his time of service and only have hearsay, but there was a medical case where the father shot his son thru the head. And another boy badly wounded in playing with the fire bell, and another time when other doctors refused to care for the small pox epidemic, & his political service to get Ashland out of debt.

PREFACE

After three years of search of the Reverend William Salisbury history I am asked to write up what I have found. In doing so I will give a little of the history of Big Sandy and southeast Kentucky in prelude.

We find in Pavnall's history of 1699 the Totro Indians settled at Hagar Hill, near Paintsville; and many Indians hunted in Big Sandy Valley as late as 1860. Dr. Thomas walker was the first known white visitor when he came through Cumberland Gap, and returned to Virginia by way of Paintsville in 1750. Daniel Boone spent the winter of 1767-68 on the Big Sandy River near Prestonsburg. The first English settlement was near East Point by Mathias Harman in 1787. It was in 1791 that many settlers came to the head of Big Sandy, Cumberland and Kentucky Rivers.

I was given several clues to the history of Rev. William when I did start to work in 1959:---

MRS. GENEVA THOMASON, of Grayson, Kentucky, a great-great-granddaughter of Rev. William, said to me that William's father came from England on a boat called "Graham" named after the owner, that landed at Rockingham, Virginia, and he, William Sr. and one daughter, Elijah, William, and Polly. I have been unable to find any record of such a ship or seaport.

MRS. LOUIS MAYO of Prestonsburg, daughter of James Salisbury, gives a similar record.

MRS. EVELYN JOHNS SALISBURY gives a historical record that William, Elijah, and Polly were the children of Richard Salisbury of Pomfret, Connecticut, but I have been unable to get that record verified.

PARM, the son of LAKEY SALISBURY, leaves me a church record that goes back many years. He also states that there were three brothers who came from England about the year 1800, and located in Patrick County, Virginia. We have verification that Rev. William obtained a license to marry Nancy Elkins on January 5, 1802. Parm also states that Elijah and William came west through Holston Valley, William preaching in many churches; and that Martin went south into North Carolina.

We have some HEARSAY records of men who have seen church records that have been destroyed by fire and floods where Rev. William preached at Deep Creek church, near Pennington Gap, about the year of 1804; also he was at Pound, Virginia about the year 1804. We have CHURCH RECORDS where he helped organize the church at Blackey, Kentucky in 1810.

I have a report from CHARLES H. HAMLIN, a GENEALOGIST, Richmond, Virginia, giving names of Salisburys (several ways of spelling the name) back to June 1, 1637 -- Robert Salsbury as headright for Alice Edloe, a widow -- and many others of the name; but none that will coincide with the birth date and known history of Rev. William.

Add to this the fact that The New York Historical Society states that Richard Salisbury had nine children, but none named Elijah or William; but that another Richard did live in Virginia; and was too old to pay road tax in 1770. He was the nephew of Cicely Seldon, from Barnstaple in Devonshire, England, according to the History of Virginia, by W. R. Jillson.

After much research of my great-grandfather William Salisbury's life work in the Baptist Church, I feel that he should be more than complimented in that service. After being married in Stuart, Virginia in 1802 he worked continuously westward through Holston Valley in many churches to the Roaring River Church near Wilksboro in North Carolina, and from there northwesterly to the Pennington Gap district, thence northeasterly into Kentucky. It was during this time that his two older sons were born. Traveling must have been mostly by horseback till the time he retired from the Church work in 1852. His last twenty-seven years of church work was in southeast Kentucky and western Virginia. The writer has covered a great deal of that territory, and knows that to get from one church to another one must go up one hill and down the same all the way; or go around and up one hollow and down another all the way. Between the extreme distance of the last fifteen or sixteen churches of which he was Moderator was some eighty miles by the way the crow flies. His devotion to the church was sincere, and he tried to keep his church true to Baptist belief --and succeeded as long as he was the Moderator of the many churches he attended. His record shows that he devoted most of his time to church work until 1852. Then he began to think of his large family in a financial way. Most of his real estate deals happened after 1852. The following inscription is on the head stone of a grave on Little Beaver in Floyd County, Kentucky:--

Elder William Salisbury
AND HIS WIFE
Elizabeth (walker) Salisbury

HE WAS A HUMBLE AND DEVOTED MINISTER FOR OVER FIFTY YEARS. MODERATOR OF BURNING SPRINGS AND NEW SALEM ASSOCIATION FOR MANY YEARS.

We have as a recorded fact that the Reverend William Salisbury, with his two infant sons, came into the Beaver Creek Valley district in Floyd County, Kentucky between the years of 1805 and 1810. He bought and sold land in Floyd County. He evidently owned land in said county before fire destroyed the county records in 1808. We find him on the tax list of October 4, 1837. There are other records of his purchases of land in the county. There is also the record of his marriage to Elizabeth walker on March 17, 1812.

Also Elijah Salisbury is reported in Hall's History of Floyd County as paying taxes in 1837, possibly poll tax.

SALISBURY -- SAULSBERRY
1800 to 1962

Reverend William Salisbury sojourned in Patrick County, Virginia for some time in his Baptist missionary work where he met John Flannery, another Baptist minister, and they preached together at many meetings. In his travels he met Miss Nancy Elkins, and they were married January 5, 1802, as recorded in Stuart, Virginia; and William Frazier was his bondsman in the marriage.

In his missionary work he traveled in a westerly direction with his newly wedded wife, and settled for a while in Holston Valley. It was during this time that his son Hiram was born, in 1803. Rev. William continued his missionary work in many of the Baptist communities, working in a westerly direction until he reached Roaring River district later that year. (This is north of Wilkesboro, North Carolina.) Continuing in a northerly direction he stopped at what was known as Deep Creek near Pennington Gap; Virginia, and organized a church there. It was in this locality that his son Milton was born in 1804. He, Milton, was the writer's grandfather. And it was near here that he met the Reverend Simeon Justice, and they worked together from time to time. We have church records of Blackey, Kentucky where Rev. Simeon Justice, William Salisbury, Eleotious Thomason, with Isaac Whitacker as the clerk; together with Deacon William Caudill, organized the Indian Bottom Church near Blackey, Kentucky, on the third Saturday of November, 1810; this church being an offshoot of the Roaring River Church (a Primitive Baptist Church), near Wilkesboro, North Carolina.

Reverend William continued his circuit preaching in southeast Kentucky until he reached a settlement on West Beaver Creek in Floyd County, Kentucky, near the mouth of Clear Creek, where his wife Nancy died, and was buried there about 1808 or 1809.

Using some of Parm Salisbury's (son of Lakey) mementoes and his records of his grandfather; Reverend William and two of his brothers, Martin and Elijah, arrived in Virginia and settled in what is now Patrick County in 1800. Martin went south to North Carolina, and Elijah came to Kentucky. Parm's records say that the Reverend William Salisbury came to Floyd County and settled near the mouth of Clear Creek about the year of 1806, and from there he became a circuit rider in the Baptist Church, and would be gone weeks at a time on mission trips. As Parm quotes, he was about five or six years old when he last saw his grandfather at his father's home, together with his second wife, Elizabeth; and they left by the back door. His grandfather was getting gray, but his hair had been reddish, and he weighed about 170 pounds. He had on white jeans pants and a homemade linzy shirt. Parm's father is quoted as saying that Rev. William was one of the best preachers in the country -- he could quote many chapters of the Bible by memory.

Reverend William Salisbury married Elizabeth Walker on March 17, 1812 in Floyd County, Kentucky. To this union were born ten children, Artie 1812, Nancy 1815, Jamima 1817, Lackey 1818, Morgan 1821, Greenville (wing) 1825, Robert 1827, Elizabeth 1830, Anna (lamb) 1831, and Sarah 1835.

As stated elsewhere, Rev. William Salisbury died in 1860, as the grave marker indicates. It could have been because of declining health after 1852 that I have been unable to find further church records concerning him. I am still looking.

Salisbury - Saulsberry

After Revernd William Salisbury settled on West Beaver Creek in Floyd County, Ky.; his son Hiram grew into manhood and married Nancy Owens, a widow, and to this union there were no children. It must be noted at this time about some of the changes in the spelling of the name. In deed book 11 page 32 Floyd County records. Hiram Saulsberry took up a hundred acres of land on Patton Branch of Beaver Creek on Aug. 25, 1843. In the many changes of the spelling of the name both in Virginia and Ky. The recorder must have spelled the name as it sounded to him.

Milton Salisbury; the son of Revernd William of Floyd County, was born _____ 1804 near Pennington Gap, Va. Floyd County, Ky. records show that he was married to Levica Hohnson July 23, 1831, by Stephen Harper, R. J. P. To this union were born three children; Polly; Nancy and William. Luvica Salisbury died Jan. 8, 1885 at Aden, Ky. Milton Salisbury had moved by slow stages from Floyd County down the Little Sandy River to Carter County about 1849. Polly Salisbury married George Littleton and to this union were born three children, Jess; Milton and George.

Nancy Salisbury married Wesley Lumpkins, and to this union were born three children; Milicent; Vica and Elizabeth.

 ville, Kentucky, divorced in 1906, and he then married Lureva Davis of Los Angeles, California, and they were also divorced. No children.

I must add more to my brother George's history. He graduated as a lawyer, and practiced about three years in Morehead, Kentucky then went to Middleboro, Kentucky. He was very successful in scheming his practice. He became interested in some English land company's holdings, and handled their business to a successful ending (for himself), with quite a bit of cash for his "services". He also entered into politics, but found it a dangerous matter to mix into; and that was when he decided to move to Seattle. While he was living at Middleboro my father sent for him to come and write his final will. My father's faith in him was great, so he let George make all decisions in wording the will. Brother George, a lawyer, suggested that father deed the property, and add a clause "not to be sold until 1950"; but he failed to tell dad that it was not lawfully binding to write such a clause for more than 21 years. He afterward brought suit against Brother Ray, and nullified the deed.

SALISBURY -- SAULSBERRY -- Family

Comes now the writer, Harry Modd Saulsberry; born at Aden, Ky, June 9, 1883. Married Elizabeth May McIntyre March 20, 1915 in Pendleton, Oregon. Elizabeth was born at McIntyre Corners, Ontario, Canada Nov. 7, 1879. She was the daughter of Donald and Anna McIntyre. Donald was born in 1851 in Tiree, Scotland. He and a brother were orphans, and coming to America his brother was drowned in Atlantic Ocean. Donald died in Athena, Oregon in 1900. Anna was born at McIntyre Corners in 1857, died in Athena, Oregon in 1928. To this union were born 7 children. Those who lived were Vassie, Elizabeth, Alexander, Archibald, Laura, and Isabelle. To our union was born one son, Donald William Saulsberry at Pendleton, Oregon, May 29, 1921. He married Lila May Stafford, of Berkeley, California, June 11, 1944. Lila May was born Nov. 8, 1911 at Waco, Calif., the daughter of Edmond Day and Margaret May (Maxwell) Stafford. To this union were born three children: Diane, born December 31, 1945 at Brownsville, Texas.

Donald William, Jr., born Feb. 3, 1948 on Long Island, New York.

Carol Sue, born Nov. 5, 1952 in Walnut Creek, Calif.

Donald William, Sr. is Captain on Pan-American World Airways, and his present home is Danville, California at this time, April, 1962.

Lila's father was born Dec. 29, 1882 in Plattsburg, N. Y. Her mother was born in Orange County California on March 15, 1884.

After the death of Elizabeth May McIntyre Saulsberry, I came to Kentucky to write up the family history. Our immediate family originated on the waters of Big Sandy River, Kentucky; and in making my headquarters at Paintsville I met the girl I went to school with sixty years ago, Mrs. Marcia Preston Copley. She was widowed and alone; and we were married Feb. 5, 1959. Sept 27 1958

In going home from Paintsville school at Christmas 1901, Brother Eph (the Administrator) decided that I should go to Danville School. Not being able to pass the examination for college, I went to Prep and studied hard all summer. I entered Centre College in the fall of 1902, and smallpox broke out the following April, Professor Edmonds being one victim, and the school closed. Brother Ed, with whom I was boarding, encouraged me to go to Flat Lick and work for him during the summer; and in August he persuaded me to stay and take part interest in the business, which I did. By the summer of 1905 I discovered he was spreading his business too much, and decided to go back to school. It was late summer when Brother George persuaded me to come to Seattle and sell real estate for him; but by 1906 country town lots did not sell well, and I told him that I was going to get a homestead and farm. It was then that he proposed the farm in Canada. I ran the farm at High River, Alberta with the understanding that I was to be a part owner. I got sick in the fall of 1908 before the thrashing was finished. He suggested that I go home to Aden and sell the farm that Father had given me, and bring the money back to Canada. After I had sold the farm to Brother John, George wrote that he did not want me as a partner, and Brother would not sell back to me.

I boomed the states of Idaho, Oregon, and Washington, looking for a suitable farm; and was in Umatilla County, Oregon when I started to work for the John Deer Implement Company. I also worked for Brother Eph in the summer of 1911 at Prosser, Washington. After I was married in 1915 I farmed in Idaho and Oregon, had a general feed store in Oregon. In 1939 I went to Seattle and built houses on property I owned until I was forced to retire with heart trouble in 1957.

SALISBURY -- SAULSBERRY SUMMARY

WILLIAM and ELIZABETH (RODGERS) SAULSBERRY were married on September 13, 1855. After the wedding my father had ten dollars left. He gave the money to mother, and she bought two linsey-woolsey dresses. After that she wove and made her own dresses. As the children arrived and grew up she wove the cloth and made all the clothing. When the railroad was built through Aden she began making clothes and selling them at the store for the workers. She also furnished room and meals for the railroad construction crews. After the roads were built the train crews would wire ahead for her to have meals for them, as all trains stopped at Aden, and she would have basket dinners at the station for them to pick up. For miles around her people came to her for medical attention and advice, or she went to see many who were unable to come to her. She was also recognized by the people and the doctors as an excellent midwife. Two of her sons became doctors, and at least one of them said that it was her commonsense attitude toward illness and good judgment in the care of the sick that caused him to enter the medical profession. Father was away from home working at the furnaces (and saving his money) for a great part of the time, and during his absences Mother ran the farm, and after they started a store she also had time for that. She was a woman of excellent health, great strength and endurance and excellent judgment. While I would praise my father for his many accomplishments, I know much of the credit is due to his wonderful helpmeet.

While Father first worked at the furnaces, as his boys grew up he developed other work, such as cutting hickory hoopoles making hoops. They would be cut in the fall of the year, then in the winter they would be split under the cliffs. There were rails to split and fences to build. Iron ore was on some of the land he bought, then there was the ore to dig and be hauled to the furnace with ox teams. There was land to clear each year for crops to be grown. In addition to their own ten boys (and one girl) there were other children in the home; his sister Polly married George Littleton and after his death father took their three sons, Jess, Milton and George into our home. Aunt Polly later married Jasper Jackson. Also Mother's oldest sister, Mary, married Balaam Phillips and she died and left a son, Jonathan, and Father took him to raise. In addition to all of these children, he supported Aunt Nancy (Rodgers) Rice and her children after her husband of the itching foot left home. We can easily see why a regular job was clearing land, building more rail fences and raising bigger crops. Father was known by many people as "Uncle Bill," but the men who worked with him called him "Hardin" for the way he worked and what he expected of them. Father acquired many small farms to add to the home place, which became a fourteen hundred acre farm, and he had some small farms that did not join the home place. He worked hard all of his life until two years before he passed away. After the railroad was built (then the Newport News and Mississippi Valley Railway, now the Chesapeake & Ohio), he acquired some saw mills, and shipped much lumber, and also handled tan bark and cross ties.

John Milton Saulsberry (PRATT) grew into maturity about the time the Newport News and Mississippi Valley Railroad (Now C. & O.) built, and was of a wild nature. He had been a good worker at the farm and the Coalens (A coalen is where they burnt wood into char coal). He associated with many strangers and work gangs that came into the community to build the Railroad. He did handle some tan bark and cross ties, but instead of following Father's advice and continue in business; he operated a Grocery; or what was known later "a saloon" very much against Father's wishes. Finally Father encouraged him to quit the whiskey business and do something else; which he did. His first set up was at Willard where he bought and sold ties and tan bark, and bought a general merchandise store with Father's backing. He did soon spread his business and went into the saw mill business, but as usual he was negligent and wasteful, and did fail in those undertakings. He tried politics a couple times and lost in that. He began raising; buying and selling tobacco, and moved from the Butler place to Grayson, and entered the wholesale shipping of tobacco and made a failure at that. He did eventually work into the home place at Aden, and bought brother Ray's half interest (see brother George writing of the deed) at a very low price, and then he bought my (Harry) half interest at the same price. At this time he was most broke again - except his home in Grayson - which he mortgaged to carry on his business at Aden. He hog mined the fire clay and sawed off all the timber and managed to be out of debt when he passed away.

Summary of the William and Elizabeth Saulsberry family

George W. Saulsberry has been mentioned on page eight, but I do wish to mention that in 1903 he moved from Middlesboro, Ky. to Seattle, Washington. and opened up a law office in the Marion Bld. and gained a very nice business in the civil law practice. He acquired land both North and South of the City, and he encouraged many Ky. friends to invest with him, and he made a fortune in sales of the property he acquired. He encouraged the writer to come to Seattle in 1905.

James Wesley Saulsberry was a sickly boy and matured very slowly to manhood in health. He was protected by his mother. He took to railroading, but Father wanted him to be a merchant and encouraged him in that line of endeavour. He never would stay long in any merchandise business; he would go back to railroad work, and he was killed by local freight train near Denton, Ky.

Mary Etta Saulsberry the only girl of the family was the apple of everyone's eye; but being the only girl was a bad position for her when she grew old enough to be of help in the household where there was so much house work to do. The best cook ever; and when she went away from home she showed her abilities in operating good hotels.

William Monroe Salisbury - He wanted his name spelled right. He was a hardy chap and a leader among the boys; very studious and quick to learn. Not over anxious to do farm work; but never shook his job. He wanted to be a doctor - hence Father sent him to Jefferson College in Philadelphia. He returned to Ashland, Ky. and practiced there very successful in medicine and surgery until he retired. He entered politics a few years before he passed away. I might add that he worked on the railroad too; but Dad encouraged him to quit - although he told me later that he would have been the train master in another two years.

SUMMARY OF WILLIAM AND ELIZABETH SAULSBERRY FAMILY

Raymond Hillhouse Saulsberry was not to say a sickly boy growing up, but was never any to strong. He managed to let the other man do the hard work. He borrowed some money from his brother George to go to law school at Washinton Lee. Thru other studies he did pass the bar examination. He had not accumulated the money, to repay brother George, so the judge sued him and broke Father's deed that George wrote. Ray's health went bad and he went to Arizona to recouperate. He never regained his health and passed away in Needles, California, Jan. 13, 1917.

SUMMARY OF WILLIAM AND ELIZABETH SAULSBERRY FAMILY

Edward Green Saulsberry was a robust young man with a great determination - a hard worker all thru his life, but he never was much interested in an education. He left home about the age of sixteen and contracted work on railroad grades. But my father finally coaxed him to enter some kind of business. He joined up and worked with Brother John for awhile, but he soon got discouraged and went on the L. & E. railroad and then into business for himself in cross ties, staves, and tan bark. He did work hard and led his men and made a financial success. He later went into the lumber business at Eminance, Ky., but returned to the stave and the manufacturing of beer barrels. His one and only trouble was spreading out his business to too many other things as farming and canning factories.

Charles Emmitt Saulsberry was an easy going boy when he began to grow into manhood - life was easy for him - while he performed his usual prescribed work on the farm - yet he enjoyed an easy undisturbed way of life. School work was also easy for him and he did well in getting an education. In deciding a vocation he followed in his brother William's decision and studied medicine. When he finished college work he decided Morehead as a location, but dissatisfied there, he moved to Toledo, Ohio - then to Mays Landing, N. J. and ended his medical career in New Brunswick, N. J. a very successful doctor and surgeon.

Ephraim L. (Mathias) Saulsberry, a hard worker as a boy, but more or less lonely for play mates as his three older brothers had then chummed up by themselves - hence, he chummed up with younger brother Alfred. When he was about seventeen years old he decided that there was easier work than hoeing corn. So very much against Father's desire he went to work on the railroad as a brakeman, but after some coaxing from Father, he left the railroad and worked some with Brother John. He finished his education under John Brown Wheatley at River, Ky. and at Morehead, Ky. He worked for and with Brother Ed; but eventually got into farming and merchandising at Lego. He should have known that the hoe handle would get hot. He got into the lumber and planing mill business, and like in all other businesses, he was born luck and emerged a financial success. He made one grand mistake - he went to Washington and procured an apple orchard, but the hoe handle got hot and he traded for some Seattle property with good success. That saw mill business got into his hide again, and to La Follette, Tenn. He finished his business career very successfully and retired.

Alfred Debarb Saulsberry was another one of the quiet and easy going fellows. He never took too much to education, but before he migrated from the home farm he had what would be called a high school education. He, like the others, worked some with older brothers and went into partnership with Eph and Ed. Then sold out and moved to a farm of his own. He later entered merchandise business and was very successful. But farm life was his living and he moved to Alberta, Canada and raised his family on a wheat ranch. Sold out and moved to Washington State on small farm and retired.

Both are buried in the cemetery at Newport, N. Y.

Richard acknowledged a deed in Swansea in 1795. He purchased property in Windham County, Conn., in 1782.

I., where he died in early life--the others came with their parents to Fairfield, Herkimer Co., N. Y., among the first settlers, some time previous to 1800. The old farm in the northern part of Fairfield is on what is called Lawton St., on the road to the Old City. It was known in later years as the Melvin Chase Farm.

Paintsville, Kentucky

Dear Mr. Salisbury:

In reply to your letter of January 2, 1962, we are sorry to have delayed answering your letter of November 10, 1961.

The large amount of correspondence we receive from all over the United States, in view of the small staff which we have, makes it necessary sometimes for us to delay answering much longer than we would like.

The record of Richard Salisbury, as it appears in the Salisbury genealogy, does not list Elijah or William as sons of Richard. We are enclosing a typed copy of this record which shows some facts of his life to correspond with the information you have, but not his descendants.

We do not find that he served in the Revolutionary War. His name does not appear in the list of the members of Captain Ingals' Company as given in the adjutant-general's Record of Service of Connecticut Men in the War of the Revolution, Hartford, 1889, nor is he listed as a Revolutionary ancestor under whom members have joined the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Thank you for your courteous offer, in your letter of November 10, 1961, offering to pay us for research, but we do not accept fees for our service.

Sincerely yours,

Director
